Other Site Characteristics

Il sito interessa il tratto più settentrionale della catena calcarea del Monte Baldo (M. Altissimo). La parte bassa del M. Altissimo è coperta da estese faggete cui si intercalano ampie distese di pascoli pingui (sul versante settentrionale sono diffusi l'abete rosso e bianco). In alto si trovano praterie alpine, vaste distese di cespuglieti subalpini (ontanete e mughete) ed ambienti rupestri. Nella zona ad Est si nota un caratteristico rilievo calcareo, sito nella fascia alto-montana-subalpina, con ultimi lembi di faggeta che lasciano il posto ai cespuglieti subalpini e soprattutto a pascoli pingui, inframmezzati da ambienti rupestri.

4.2 Quality and importance

Il paesaggio vegetale attuale è un felice equilibrio tra naturalità ed attività silvo-pastorali dell'uomo. Eccezionale la presenza di specie endemiche in un ambiente paesaggisticamente pregevole. Il sito è di rilevante interesse nazionale e/o provinciale per la presenza e la riproduzione di specie animali in via di estinzione, importanti relitti glaciali, esclusive e/o tipiche delle Alpi nonché per la presenza di invertebrati legati a boschi in buone condizioni di naturalità. Un discreto contingente di specie endemiche e la notevole variabilità ambientale - unita ad una facile accessibilità - rendono in particolare l'area di Cornapiana del tutto idonea ad un utilizzo di tipo didattico. Area di interesse internazionale per il transito di molte specie migratrici a medio e lungo raggio nel periodo tardo estivo e autunnale (migrazione post-riproduttiva).
